

STAYING ON-TOPIC

When we talk to others, we need to stay on-topic. This means we talk about what the rest of the group is talking about. We can comment or ask questions about that topic. If others are talking about their pets, we should talk about “pets” as well. People like it and want to be our friend when we stay on-topic.

EYE-CONTACT

When we talk to others, we look at them in their eyes. This shows that we are listening and interested in what they are saying. We can also nod our head and ask them a question back. People like it and we make friends when we look at people in the eyes when they are talking.
