OSAS Data- 2021-2022

Goal: Create and sustain an inclusive, joyful, and thought-provoking learning community for students and staff by prioritizing equity, belonging, and collective efficacy.

Our effectiveness will be measured through the use of assessments such as MAP, OSAS, and Panorama. We will also utilize staff and student feedback focused specifically on school climate, sense of belonging, well-being, efficacy, and emotional regulation. Finally, we will collect data about attendance, family engagement and participation, and office referrals to monitor our progress.

Specific benchmarks to monitor:

- At or above 85% favorable responses to sense of belonging survey by staff
- Increase by 5% of favorable responses by students to question, “How much respect do students at your school show you?”
- At or above average of 95% attendance
- Average of less than 1 office referral per day
- 100% of students above the 50th percentile in growth in reading and math as measured by MAP assessments in Spring 2023
- Increase overall OSAS achievement scores by 10%, 20% for all student sub-groups below the overall mean
- 100% family participation in school conferences, both Fall and Spring

When we create this school climate, we believe that student learning and growth in social, emotional, and academic skills will increase, along with staff belonging and efficacy.

- 5 Dimensions of Teaching and Learning
 - Consistency and building capacity
- Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion
 - Sense of belonging, Circles of Support process, schoolwide systems and expectations, cultural competence and implicit bias

All children are motivated readers, writers, and thinkers who make over a year's growth.

- Students have multiple assessment opportunities and are supported and expected to demonstrate progress toward their individual learning goals
- Teachers use different instructional strategies, based on planned and/or in the moment decisions to address individual learning needs

Every student's social, emotional, and academic needs are met to ensure access to consistently high levels of learning in all classrooms.

- Social-emotional skills (including self-awareness, self management, and social/relational awareness) are taught in explicit and implicit ways.
- Students show responsibility for ownership of classroom and schoolwide systems and routines that further independence, learning, and a culture of respect
- Engagement strategies encourage equitable and purposeful student participation and ensure that all students have access to, and are expected to participate in learning
- Instructional materials and tasks are appropriately challenging and supportive for all students and are culturally and academically relevant
- Teacher is a “warm demander,” holding high standards while offering emotional and instructional scaffolds to help each student, every student, access classroom curriculum
- Classroom culture fosters the exchange of constructive feedback and celebrations of growth
- Classroom discourse and interactions reflect high expectations and beliefs about all students intellectual capabilities and create a culture of belonging, equity, and accountability for learning
